WIND STORM

Causes Little Damage in Seymour And Jackson County.

One of the worst wind storms in several months passed over this section of Indiana Wednesday evening. The storm, it is said, was due to an interchange of temperature, from high to low and began on the western side of the continent and continued eastward, having the storm center in eastern Iowa. A slight decrease in temperature was registered during the evening.

The wind arose here early in the afternoon and gradually increased until about 7:30 o'clock when a velocity of nearly fifty miles an hour was registered. Although some damage was done by the storm in Seymour and Jackson county, no large losses have been reported.

The wind played havoc with many of the shade trees, and the streets were filled this morning with limbs and branches which had been blown down by the storm. A fine fruit tree at the residence of Henry Rinne on Carter street was blown down and part of a shade tree in front of the First Baptist church was also blown down.

A part of the roofing and cornice on the building at the corner of Chestnut and Bruce streets and occupied by the Goyert-Vogel Poultry Company was blown down. A fence on the grounds of the Seymour Woolen Company was blown down and a number of other fences in the city and country were destroyed. No damage was done to any of the telephone or telegraph wires in the county and the service was not in any way impaired.

School On Saturday.

In order that the pupils in the Shields building might be dismissed a few weeks earlier in the spring, so that work on the new school building might begin as early as possible, the school board has decided to hold school in that building on Saturday. The regular vacation will begin on May 20, but on account of the extra school day each week, the pupils of the Shields building will probably be dismissed for the summer about May 6. School will convene in this building each Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock and will adjourn for the day at 11:30.

Township Convention.

Pursuant to call of the County Chairman the Republicans of Jackson Township will meet in mass convention on Saturday evening Jan. 29th at 7:30 in the City Hall at Seymour for the purpose of electing four delegates and three alternates to the District Convention and one committeeman from each precinct in the township.

I. G. SALTMARSH,
Twp. Chairman.

Birthday Surprise.

Dr. C. A. Hunter, of Reddington, was forty-nine years old Tuesday. And the event was celebrated by a fine dinner, served by his wife and other relatives. The day was pleasantly spent by himself as well as all present. Those present from Seymour were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. G. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Davis and Misses Fern and Ruth Hunter.

Bowels clogged, sick headache, no fun is it? Why not have that happy face, red cheeks that come with good digestion. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes the bowels work regular, natural, makes you feel like new. Take it tonight.

DIED.

ENGLAND—Ida May England, daughter of Alex. and Mary England, died Thursday morning, Jan. 27, at eleven o'clock at their home at the corner of Oak and Buckeye streets, after an extended illness with lung trouble. Age 19 years and 26 days. She was born at Brownstown on January 1 1891. Funeral services at the residence Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. L. A. Winn. Burial at Brownstown.

Annual Banquet.

The Lutheran Young Ladies' Society celebrated their twelfth anniversary Wednesday evening, Jan. 26, 1910, with a six course banquet in their society hall at the German Lutheran school building. The society now has a membership of thirty-four, thirty-one of whom were present. The program consisted of music, readings and recitations. Miss Lisette Albering, who is president of the society, acted as toast-mistress. A paper entitled "True Thoughts," which was received from Miss Anna Holtmann, a former member of the society, who is now a nurse in a Lutheran hospital at Ft. Wayne, was read and very much appreciated. Miss Lula Albering, another absent member, who is spending the winter at Thomasville, Georgia, remembered the society by sending to each one of its members a beautiful southern view, with a few interesting remarks to each one, which were read during the evening and very much enjoyed. The hall and banquet table were beautifully decorated with pink carnations, fern and smilax. The program was given as follows:

"The Young Ladies' Society," by—Lisette Albering.

"A Poem" by—Edna Droege.

"A letter from Abroad," by—Sophia Holtmann.

"A Woman's Mission in Life,"—Dora Frey.

"Essay," by—Margaret Ahlbrand.

Passion Play.

The Passion Play, which is reproduced every ten years at Oberamagan, Germany, will be given there again this year and it is probable that a number of Seymour people will be there some time during the summer to see this wonderful biblical production which has been religiously reproduced by the natives of that historic place year after year for a long time. It is said that Oberamagan was once visited by a terrible plague and that at that time they promised to reproduce this play every ten years if the Lord would remove this plague from among them.

Texas Oranges.

Lon Prewitt returned this morning from Texas where he has been spending a few days with his family. He brought back some oranges which he picked from the trees and they are fine specimens of fruit. Mrs. Prewitt is regaining her strength slowly but steadily and is well pleased with the climate.

PURE WATER

Being Furnished By Seymour Water Company to Patrons.

J. H. Brewster, of Indianapolis, Water Chemist of the State Board of Health, who has been making daily laboratory analysis for over a month of the water used in Seymour, was in the city this morning, and stated that there was not a city in Indiana which was being furnished purer water than that supplied to this city by the Seymour Water Company. Mr. Brewster has been here several times in the past year and has supervised many improvements which have been made by the water company in order that better and purer water might be furnished its patrons.

Within the past year, the filtering plant has been reconstructed entirely, and the best plan adopted for filtering the water. New machinery has been placed in position and many other costly additions made that the best water possible might be furnished.

During the past few weeks many of the patrons have detected a peculiar taste in the water which was supposed by some to be due to the process used in filtering. This taste is not caused by the filtering process, according to Mr. Brewster, but is the result of the condition of the water, and is noticeable in many other cities, where the water supply comes from a river.

The reason for the flavor is that the river has been covered with ice for several weeks and the water, which ordinarily has a ten per cent air saturation is found to contain about one per cent. This condition arises only when the winters are severe, and the water is covered with ice for a short time, which prevents it from becoming aerated.

There is also a large amount of organic matter in the river which flows down the river under the ice, and although the water is absolutely pure, there is an organic stain or flavor which can not be destroyed until the water comes in direct contact with the air.

Mr. Brewster emphasized the fact that the flavor which is at times noticeable, does not indicate an impure water, and it is practically impossible to destroy the peculiar taste. He commended the Seymour Water Company upon their efforts to secure the best water possible, and said that the patrons of this city are being supplied with pure, wholesome water at all times of the year.

The plant of the water company is now in the best of condition and improvements are being constantly made to keep the water supply in the best possible condition. Mr. Brewster is highly pleased with the water condition here, which, he says, are much better than in many of the other cities in Indiana.

Engineer An Inventor.

Otto F. Kloetzer, a locomotive engineer on the B. & O. has invented a rotary valve that will do away with the eccentrics and also the links. The valve now used on the modern type of steam engine is a sliding valve and is worked by the links and eccentric. A link on the steam engine is the rod that connects the eccentric with the valve, giving the sliding motion that operates the main valves of the engine. The operation of Mr. Kloetzer's valve will do away entirely with the use of the links and eccentrics. His rotary valve, it is claimed, will make the operation of the engine simple where it has been complicated. The engineer is now in Washington City, where he has presented a claim for a patent.

Want Sunday Trains.

The citizens of Medora filed a petition with the Railroad Commission of Indiana Wednesday asking for a train on the B. & O. S-W. Railroad that would stop on Sunday. It was set out in the petition that there were five passenger trains going east and six passenger trains going west on Sunday without stopping. According to the petition no passenger trains stop in Medora under the present schedule from 3:46 Saturday afternoon until 5:35 Monday morning. The citizens of Medora feel that they are entitled to better Sunday train service and will make an effort to have one train each way stop on Sunday.

First Examinations.

The first teachers' examinations for the year will be held Saturday all over the state. The examination will be held under the supervision of the county superintendents in every county seat. Those able to pass the test successfully will be given a state license, the kind of license being determined by the standing achieved and the number of years of experience or lack of it. Under the law the examinations are to be held the last Saturday of the first eight month of each calendar year.

Census Enumerators.

On next Saturday the Census officer will have completed the work of selecting the 68,000 enumerators upon whom will fall the burden of taking the next census. Only in remote parts of the west has there failed to be enough applicants to fill the places. On Feb. 5 applicants will take the simple examination making them eligible. As now framed each enumerator will account for about 1,350 of inhabitants. In the cities many of them will record 2,500.

Will Represent Earlham.

Homer Morris and Chester Haworth, the two young Earlham students, who spent several weeks in this city last fall selling aluminum ware and who made many friends while here, have been chosen as two of the three representatives of Earlham in the annual debate with Albion College. They will debate at Albion, Mich. March 18 on the question: "Resolved, That the laboring classes can best advance their interest by organized a separate political party."

MANY CONVERTED

As Result of Special Revival Meeting at Churches.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

In spite of the severe windstorm there was a good congregation in attendance, and there was a larger percent of men than usual. This was the result of the work of one brother, and this shows what men can do if they will only exert their influence among their fellows. Try it again, my brother, and you will not only do good to others, but it will be the spiritual uplift of your own soul. Mr. Fradenburgh has just two more nights with us, let us make the most of them.

The sermon last evening was based on 11:39 of John's gospel. "Take ye away the stone." It was a timely sermon, and brought forth some pointed facts which ought to be carefully considered by both the saved and the unsaved. The speaker referred to the stone of doubt, of unbelief, of pride, of indifference. He also showed how men must cooperate with God in material things, and that the same law prevailed in spiritual things. When the church goes ready for a blessing, the Lord always gives it. When the unsaved soul was willing to forsake all and follow Christ, the Lord would save.

There was one married lady confessed the Savior and put herself on the Lord's side. Meeting this evening at 7:30. Come, and bring a friend with you. There will be special music and a good sermon.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Three services yesterday—2:30, 3:30 and 7:30 p. m. All the services were well attended. The children service at 3:30 was a very interesting one. About 100 children present. No doubt many of the children will date their conversion from that hour. Notwithstanding the high wind, the evening service was largely attended. The Evangelist preached a splendid sermon from the words, "Son Remember." After the sermon an invitation was given to those who desired to seek Christ. Then the people beheld a sight not often witnessed—a young man leading his mother, 72 years of age, to the altar of prayer. She was happily converted. Her son and his wife were converted on Monday evening. A number said by standing that they desired to live the christian life. Others came forward asking for an interest in the prayers of God's people. Men and women are becoming interested in themselves. Pray for those who are awakened, and pray that others may become awakened at once. A large number are almost persuaded to accept Christ. Pray that this may be the day in which many may turn and seek the Lord.

Please do not miss a service if it is so you can attend. Come expecting a good service this evening. Don't forget the meeting for men Sunday at 3:00 p. m.

SNAKE OUT OF SEASON.

A farmer from Redding township reported this morning that he found a blacksnake about 3½ or 4 feet long lying along the road in the vicinity of Reddington. The warmest temperature reported here yesterday was sixty degrees, or only twenty-eight degrees above freezing, and it is difficult to see how a snake should happen to be crawling around so soon after the extremely cold weather and at this season of the year.

Circuit Court.

In the case of Hall vs Hall, which was venued from this county and was on trial at Scottsburg on Monday and Tuesday of this week, the jury failed to agree and was discharged Wednesday after being out all night. It is said that the jury stood six to six on the final ballot. It is also stated that they stood 8 to 4 in favor of the defendant on the first ballot. A. C. Branaman, of this city, represented the defendant, and Henry Prince, of Brownstown, sat as special judge in the case. The parties to the suit reside at Crothersville.

POINSETTIA CURTAINS.

Embroidered Cheesecloth Makes Daintiest Window Screens.

The gayest little sash curtains that ever bobbed and swayed for pure joy in the sunlight and breeze are made of fine white cheesecloth applied with bright red poinsettias, that cheeriest of all glad flowers. In the summer they are pretty, but in the winter, hung in a window which frames a snowy landscape, they are wonderfully attractive.

They may be made as a half length sash curtain, a full length sash drape or Dutch curtains—that is, straight sash draperies hanging on either side, with a ruffle between across the top.

POINSETTIA MOTIF FOR WINDOW CURTAINS.

An outer casement drapery of plain red would be artistic and effective provided the room were done in red.

The curtains in any case should not be looped or draped, straight hanging effects being the order of the day. A two inch hem gives a pretty finish, with the poinsettias above, placed one after the other in a straight row. These flowers are to be cut out of linen, selecting a fast color in that beautiful shade of red which is brilliant, yet not savage, as some reds have a way of being.

The poinsettias are first traced on the linen by means of carbon paper, then cut out with small, sharp scissors, based on and applied with a fine Kensington outline stitch, using wash silk of the same color. The centers of the flowers are embroidered in medium green French knots.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Let the Older Children Help Make the Decorations.

The cost of decorating a Christmas tree is largely a question of choice.

Nothing makes so much show for the money invested as tinsel, and it should be used on the Christmas tree as extravagantly as the purse warrants. An inexpensive but exceptionally artistic decoration was worked by one mother to whom expense was a great consideration. It consisted of chains of cranberries and popcorn interwoven with gilt and silver tinsel. The red of the berries, the white of the corn and the glitter of the tinsel against the green of the tree were wonderfully pretty.

Another mother who had to evolve her decorations had only cotton batting and tinsel as her stock in hand. The tree was first flecked with bits of cotton, as if a snowstorm had passed that way, then sprinkled freely with epsom salt, which produces the same effect as diamond dust and costs next to nothing; then yards and yards of tinsel were draped over and among the branches. The result of this simple decoration was charming. The base of the tree was banked with cotton.

Paper Christmas bells make effective and inexpensive decorations for a tree. If the children of the household are kindergartners their fingers can fashion the trimmings of tissue or gilt and silver paper. Apropos of the children lending a hand, it is a mistake upon the part of the mother, after the children are old enough to assist, to take upon herself the entire task of trimming the tree. Then, too, it is really depriving the children of a great pleasure, for the fact that they had a hand in the matter will add rather than detract from their joy. Of course the gifts, the real surprise feature, if hung upon the tree, must be put in place after the children are off for the Land of Nod. The better plan is to arrange the gifts around the base of the tree, for if hung upon it the decorations will be more or less disturbed when detaching the gifts.

The Sign of the Closed Door.

When you come to the sign of the closed door you may know its message. It is simple enough, though few know it. It is simply the word "Knock."

In this day, when nothing is sacred and privacy is an outgrown and forfeited privilege, the closed door has no significance.

We are much too busy and in a great deal too much of a hurry to pay each other the implied though subtle compliment of announcing our arrival before entering another's room. We take it for granted that the members of our own family at least will always welcome our presence.

Though on many occasions this practice seems only a useless form, it always implies a highly developed sense of courtesy, a phenomenon which is deplorably rare within family circles.

It would be begging the question to think of knocking before entering the family living room, which belongs as much to one member of the family as another, though here, too, it is rather gratifying to enter a home where the maid has been taught to pay her mistress this courtesy.

In too many homes the closed door means nothing. People have lost all sense of the value of privacy and the personal rights of others, and they blunder into each other's room as bravely as they enter the corner drug store or the street car.

MASTER'S SALE

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Indiana, made and entered on the 20th day of December, 1909, in a certain suit therein pending wherein the Columbia Trust Company, Trustee, is complainant, and the Seymour Home Telephone Company and another are defendants, being case numbered 19043 the undersigned Master in Chancery will, on Friday, February 11, 1910 offer for sale and sell at public outcry at the Court House in the town of Brownstown, in the County of Jackson, and State of Indiana, between the hours of nine o'clock a. m. and five o'clock p. m. to the highest bidder, all and singular, as an entirety, the following real, personal and mixed property, rights, franchises and privileges, namely:

TO THE PUBLIC.

I desire to say that when I took the agency for ZEMO, it was after a thorough investigation as to the merit and curative properties of this remedy for eczema, pimples and dandruff. I frankly admit, ZEMO has far exceeded my expectations as a cure for skin diseases. I am pleased to state that I shall continue the agency as ZEMO gives the best satisfaction of any similar remedy I have ever sold. My customers like ZEMO because it is a clean, vegetable liquid for external use. ZEMO cures by drawing to the surface of the skin and destroying the germ life that causes the disease, leaving the skin clean and healthy. It does not soil the clothing or linens and can be used freely on infants.

We will give a booklet on skin diseases and explain to any person how they can be cured at home of any form of skin or scalp disease by this clean, scientific preparation.

A. J. PELLEN, the Druggist.

Kaffir Banking.

The Kaffirs have a simple method of banking. Before setting out to trade they select one of their number as their banker and put all their money in his bag. When an article is purchased by any of those who are in this combine the price is taken by the banker from the bag, counted several times and then paid to the seller, after which all the bank depositors cry out to the banker in the presence of two witnesses selected, "You owe me so much." This is then repeated by the witnesses. The general accounting comes between the banker and his several depositors when all the purchases have been made, after which all the natives go home.

Itching Eczema Washed Away.

Is it worth 25 cents to you to stop that awful, agonizing itch? Surely you will spend 25 cents on your druggist's recommendation, to cool and heal and soothe that terrible itching eruption?

By arrangement with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, we are able to make a special offer of a 25-cent bottle of the oil of wintergreen compound, known as D. D. D. Prescription. Call, or write, or telephone to Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

We absolutely know that the itch is stopped AT ONCE by D. D. D. Prescription, and the cures all seem to be permanent.

Kept Her Promise.

"Billy, dear," said his young wife coaxingly, "tell me the password of your lodge."

"But I pledged myself never to disclose that, Bella."

"You're not disclosing it when you give it to me. You know we have no secrets from each other."

"If I tell you what it is, dear, will you promise sacredly never to repeat it to a living soul?"

"Yes, I promise."

"Well, here it is—Chatty-biddy-bee-chitty-biddy-biparaparagoolagarithow-ka-speckly-bexlybim."

True to her word, the young wife never repeated it to anybody.—Chicago Tribune.

Stomach Trouble Cured

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. P. Clote, of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." GOLD-MEDAL FLOUR

LOST HIS MONEY.

Made a Bet and Foolishly Picked the Wrong Member.

There was an eminent English sergeant at law some years ago who had a cork leg that was a triumph of artistic deception. None but his intimates knew for certain which was the real and which was the sham limb. A wild young wag of the "outer bar," who knew the sergeant pretty well, once thought to utilize this knowledge of the sergeant's secret to take in a green, newly fledged young barrister. The sergeant was addressing a special jury at Westminster in his usual earnest and vehement style, and the wag whispered to his neighbor:

"You see how hot old Bufuz is over his case. Now, I'll bet you a sovereign I'll run this pin into his leg up to the head and he'll never notice it, he's so absorbed in his speech. He's a most extraordinary man in that way."

This was more than the greenhorn could swallow, so he took the bet. The wag took a large pin from his waistcoat and, leaning forward, drove it up to the head in the sergeant's leg. A yell that froze the blood of all who heard it, that made the hair of the jury stand on end and the judge's wig almost fall off, rang through the court. "By Jove, it's the wrong leg! I've lost my money!" exclaimed the dismayed and conscience stricken wag as he fled through the door, while the lacerated lawyer danced on his cork leg and howled in agony.

A Heaven of a Time.

Little Helen had developed the habit of holding her thumb in her mouth, even while eating. The mother had resorted to all sorts of methods to correct the child and finally in desperation said:

"Helen, the first thing you know you will swallow your thumb, and then what will you do?"

"Well, mother, I should hate to swallow it, because I'd have a heaven of a time without it."

"Why, Helen?" said the astonished mother. "Where did you hear an expression like that?"

"Well—well," hesitated the little girl, "I didn't hear it exactly like that, mother, but I thought it would sound better."—Lippincott's.

Don't Be Selfish.

If we avoid sympathy and wrap ourselves round in a cold chain armor of selfishness we exclude ourselves from many of the greatest and purest joys of life. To render ourselves insensible to pain we must forfeit also the possibility of happiness.—Sir John Lubbock.

Her Preference.

The young man who said he'd never eaten any to somebody who asked him if he liked Trollope was outdone the other day in a Fifth Avenue book store, says the New York Sun. A girl of seventeen came in and asked the clerk for Prometheus, "by a man named Kelley or Sheets or something like that."

"Oh," said the clerk, "Shelley's 'Prometheus Unbound'?"

"Yes," replied the girl; "that's it. But, if you please, I'd rather have it bound; it's so easy to lose the pages, you know, if it isn't."

The Whole Science of It.

Two women walking along one of the business thoroughfares of New York heard a great shouting of "Extry, extry!" and looked about to see where all the noise was coming from. Across the street they spied one very small newsboy shouting with all his might.

One of the women, attracting the boy's attention, called him to her and bought a paper; then as she dropped the pennies into the little fellow's hand she said:

"You mustn't make so much noise, my little man. You can sell your papers just as well without yelling so."

For half a second the boy looked up at her in surprise, then exclaimed:

"You don't understand, missus; you have got to yell like — to make a living in New York."

Doubly Revenged.

They were a happy pair, bent on enjoying themselves, and they didn't much mind if the other passengers suffered in consequence. Presently the girl started to criticize the clothes worn by an elderly female sitting on the opposite seat, and the youth, wishing to please, entered into the thing heartily.

The old lady's old fashioned outfit was fully criticised, with more or less giggling on the young lady's part; the cut of her skirt was condemned, and there is no telling what might have come next if the woman had not put a sudden stop to the conversation by a bit of clever feminine strategy.

She turned her head, noticed that the girl was considerably older than the youth and in the smoothest of tones said:

"Madam, will you please ask your son to stop staring at me? It becomes irritating."

The Scrap Book

Too Realistic.
A fairly well to do but rather miserly farmer said to a friend: "Say, Bill, I'm going to kill my pig, but I owe so much pork to my neighbors that I shall have none left for myself if I pay it all back. What would you do?"
"Quite easy to trick 'em," said the friend. "Kill your pig and leave it hanging outside until late at night, so's every one can see it. Then take it in and say some one stole it. Stick to the tale and you'll be all right."
The farmer followed instructions, and the kind friend watched his chance and stole the pig. The poor farmer came around next morning to tell what had happened. "Somebody's stolen my pig!" he cried.
"Good!" said the friend. "Stick to it, and the neighbors 'll believe you, sure enough."
"But it was stolen, I tell you!"
"Excellent!" quoth the friend. "Just you stick to the tale."
"You confounded ass!" yelled the farmer. "Don't you understand? It was really stolen!"
"Superb!" laughed the delighted friend. "You ought to have been an actor, so you ought." Then the farmer slammed the door and went away fuming.

Opportunity.
Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait;
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote and, passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate;
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate.
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore—
I answer not and return no more.
—John J. Ingalls.

Didn't Have to Resort to Numbers.
The school census taker stopped at a little hut in the mountains of Kentucky and, addressing the mother of an unusually large flock of children, said:
"Madam, I am taking the school census. How many children have you between the ages of six and—"
"Lemme see," she broke in, "there's Katy an' Mary an' Annie an' Lucy an' Carrie an' Rob an' Jake an' Will an' Harry an' Jim an'—"
"She paused for a breath, and her caller made haste to say:
"Now, madam, if you could just give me the number!"
"Number!" she snapped. "Number!" We ain't commenced numberin' 'em yet, thank ye. We ain't run out o' names."

Rose to the Occasion.
The consul in London of a continental kingdom was informed by his government that one of his countrywomen, supposed to be living in Great Britain, had been left a million of money. After advertising without result he applied to the police, and a smart young detective was set to work.
When a few weeks had gone by his chief asked him how he was going on.
"I've found the lady, sir."
"Good! Where is she?"
"At my place. I got married to her yesterday!"

The Next Move.
A substantial looking man halted for a moment in the street, pulled out a big wallet and examined a card which he took from it. As he dropped the card back and closed the book a fat wad of bills showed in one of its compartments. A pair of pickpockets passing caught sight of the money, and, with a rapid exchange of meaning glances, they dropped a little behind and followed the man for several blocks with the view of availing themselves of the first opportunity to relieve him of the roll. After awhile the man with the wad suddenly turned and entered a lawyer's office, leaving the pickpockets facing each other with looks of dismay.
"What shall we do now?" growled one of them.
"Let us wait for the lawyer," said the other.

Melba's First Appearance.
Melba's first public appearance was made at the age of six, when she sang "Comin' Thro' the Rye" at a school concert. She was eager to hear what her playfellows, and one in particular, thought of her triumph. After many indirect attempts to introduce the subject Nellie at length found herself unable to wait longer and exclaimed excitedly: "But the concert, the concert! I sang last night and was encored." And she looked with interest in the face of her friend, who answered wistfully, "Yes; Nellie Mitchell and I could see your garters." —Melba in "A Biography."

GIFT FOR HOUSEWIFE.

A Substantial Side Pocket In Which to Carry Keys.
Housekeepers will appreciate a gift of a side pocket to be worn about the morning tasks. So equipped, a demand for purse or key does not mean a trip upstairs or a wild search.
While leather pockets can be bought for such uses, they do not quite fill the need for house wear, as they flap around and rub the skirt.
A pocket such as tailors wear, but more artistic, will prove convenient. This is made of heavy, smooth cloth in envelope shape and stitched on the machine. Cut a strip of cloth twelve inches long and five inches wide. Fold up the end to the depth of two and one-eighth inches from top to make the pocket. Slope the edge beyond the pocket into a point, like the flap of an envelope. This point is provided with a buttonhole to fasten to the belt.
The pocket part should have buttons and buttonholes or patent clasps along the upper edge. Though deep enough not to drop the contents, it is often convenient to close the top when working actively.
The edges of the bag may be finished in several ways. When making it for one's own use the edges may be pinked and the turned up parts stitched on the machine. When intended as a gift, elaboration is preferred. If pinking is liked a line of brier stitching can be run around the bag within the line of pinking. This can be worked in a contrasting color, and a monogram in the same color can be embroidered in the center.
Again, the edges can be neatly bound with heavy satin ribbon or a fine silk braid. This usually looks better in self tones, the monogram being the one touch of color.

A HANDY KITCHEN.

Small but Convenient In Every Particular.
"The handiest kitchen I ever worked in," said a housewife recently, "was originally a rather roomy pantry, yet so carefully was everything arranged that there was no crowding and never an unnecessary step, as in a large room. The two doors opening into dining room and storeroom opened out of the room. Being small, it received sufficient heat from the dining room stove, so contained only a gasoline stove and a good sized fireless cooker. Along one side was a big cupboard for the usual kitchen utensils. A small shelf of convenient height held the food chopper, always ready for use, while a flour bin with two compartments and sifters underneath was fastened to the wall. One folding chair stood at the end of the cupboard when not in use. On the opposite side was a large work table that let down against the wall, and above it was a cupboard for baking necessities. A hinged seat on the wall at the end of the table made a convenient place to sit while wiping dishes or preparing vegetables. A small iron sink contained the faucets and provided an abiding place underneath for the high stool with which every kitchen should be supplied.
The work for a family of three was done in this room with perfect ease, and even on washing day, when the machine and tub must be brought in, a little forethought prevented all crowding. In a small kitchen a moderate sized family can be cared for at a minimum expenditure of steps and cleaning."

New Table Silver.
All of the latest knives and forks have handles of silver which have entirely superseded the white handles of ivory and mother of pearl. The silver is found to be more substantial and is less likely to be spoiled or broken by constant use. Silver platters also take precedence over the ones of china for the serving of all meats, poultry and fish, as they hold the heat better and insure the serving of these courses piping hot, a thing not possible with china.
It is not customary abroad to place half a dozen knives and forks of various designs, some for fish and some for fowl and some for no one knows what, alongside the plates before a dinner is begun. But for each course as it is removed the waiter brings the "tool" for the next. Not only is this bit of show done away with, but it is considered in bad taste to spread out an array of silverware before your guests, an act which appears rather parvenu, as though the object of a feast were to make an exhibition of wealth. It is taken for granted by one's guests that there is plenty of silver to go round.

A Christmasy Plum Pudding.
This plum pudding is steamed in a melon mold and garnished with a spray of holly and rings of hard sauce, with cubes of wine jelly in the center of each.

For Those Who Wear Glasses.
To prevent steam from settling on your eyeglasses when out of doors in cold weather rub both sides of the lenses with soap, rub off with a soft cloth and polish with tissue paper. —Woman's Home Companion.

After The Grippe

"I am much pleased, to be able to write and thank you for what Cardui has done for me," writes Mrs. Sarah J. Gilliland, of Siler City, N. C.
"Last February, I had the Grippe, which left me in bad shape. Before that, I had been bothered with female trouble, for ten years, and nothing seemed to cure it.
"At last, I began to take Cardui. I have taken only three bottles, but it has done me more good than all the doctors or than any other medicine I ever took."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic
For the after-effects of any serious illness, like the Grip, Cardui is the best tonic you can use. It builds strength, steadies the nerves, improves the appetite, regulates irregularities and helps bring back the natural glow of health.
Cardui is your best friend, if you only knew it. Think of the thousands of ladies whom Cardui has helped! What could possibly prevent it from helping you?
Remember you cannot get the benefit of the Cardui ingredients in any other medicine, for they are not for sale in any drug store except in the Cardui bottle. Try Cardui.

COOKING AND HEALTH.

Old Time Housekeepers Knew Not the Meaning of Such Words.
None of us likes the digestibility of our food dinned into our ears. To tell Maria that milk and fish should not be eaten together or that a menu of meat three times a day is injurious serves but to irritate her without affecting her habits.
The intelligent housewife makes it a business to study cooking in relation to health and serves her meals accordingly, while commenting not.
She knows that intelligent cooking depends largely upon proportions, that a well planned menu offers contrasts that are not only attractive, but healthful.
Realizing that the body demands its daily quota of protein, starch, fat, mineral and water, she plans her meals to give them to her family and at the same time afford an agreeable variety.
The old time housekeeper knew not the meaning of such words, much less could apply them to her marketing. She served meat and potatoes together because her grandmother had done so and would have sniffed at the idea that meat furnishes the protein that is absent from potatoes, while the latter supply the carbohydrates, in which meat is wanting.
It makes small difference to her that eggs have no carbohydrates, but supply more protein and fat and less water than most foods. "Eggs is eggs" and are served ad nauseam when they are cheap and stunted when prices soar.
She perhaps does not know what foods come under the class "starchy," much less realizes that they are more digestible by thorough cooking, while albumenoids and fatty foods are less digestible when cooked.
There is much fun poked at the scientific cook, but the up to date housewife, undaunted by ridicule, makes a point to know food combinations from the health standpoint as well as from that of fashion or long custom.
She is sensible, however, not to parade her theories. She skillfully takes in consideration in preparation of a dish or the planning of a meal food principles, but her family only knows that they enjoy those meals hugely and seem to thrive upon them as they never would under the old order of hodgepodge, unintelligent cooking.

What Girls Should Know.
How to broil an inexpensive steak and how to make over last year's hat so that it will do are things that Mrs. Ella Flagg Young thinks that the Chicago schools should teach every girl. There will be a much more extensive domestic science course under her efficient superintendency.

THE legislative program laid down by President Taft meets the approval of the people generally throughout the country. Congress will do well to get down to hard work at once and carry out the wishes of the president.

ACCORDING to Albert Lieber, the Indianapolis brewer, the brewers have reformed. He says they are for law obedience and stand ready to help the officers to enforce the law. One way they can help is to refuse to sell to any one who does not keep the law. Another way is to refuse to ship their products into dry territory.

A FEW days ago Major Peyton, superintendent of the Indiana Reformatory, said he would not make any more political appointments at the institution over which he presides. That is a confession that he has made some and that is what the friends of Congressman Cox, a democrat, charge. One republican after another has been dismissed without cause and democrats have been appointed to the vacancies. There should be no politics in the management of any state institution for the law forbids it. Major Peyton can say that he will make no more political appointment but wait and see.

Have a Purpose.

It does not matter whether a man toll for months on a few inches of his canvas or cover a palace front with color in a day so only that it be with a solemn purpose that he have filled his heart with patience or urged his hand to haste.—Ruskin.

A Virginia Belle's Wit.

Shortly before Miss Ould's marriage she was at a dinner in Richmond with several lawyers, one of whom was a noted Munchausen. He was also a desperate drinker and held long sessions. He was boasting of one case in which he had earned a $30,000 fee and then spent it on a single spree. Her table neighbor asked Miss Ould if she credited the story. Her answer was prompt—"I might doubt the storied earn, but he's all right for that animated bust!"—De Leon's "Belles and Beaux."

Couldn't Blame the Fish.

A broad minded dominie, whose parish was near the headwaters of the Susquehanna, had among his parishioners a character who was more punctual at the fishing hole down by the river than he was at church on Sundays. Bright and early one Monday morning this Sabbath fisherman called the preacher to the door and presented him with a very fine and tempting string of pickerel. The dominie was very profuse with his thanks for a gift that was indeed welcomed.

"But, look here, parson," said the man, still retaining the fish, "those fish were caught yesterday and maybe your conscience won't let ye eat 'em." "Never mind that," and the dominie stretched out his hand for the string, "there's one thing certain, the pickerel were not to blame."

GOOD WORD FOR BOND HOLDERS

Gravel Road Work to Be Resumed In Indiana.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT

Effect of Recent Reversal of a Former

Decision Which Created Consternation Among Gravel Road Contractors and Holders of Township Road Bonds Is Reflected in Word From All Parts of the State of Immediate Resumption of Interrupted Work, While the Bond Market Reports a Decided Stimulation of Demand For This Form of Securities.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—Reports received at the statehouse indicate that a general resumption of township road building under the township gravel road law, declared constitutional by the supreme court Tuesday, on reconsideration of a case appealed from Hamilton county, will be undertaken over the state. Reports from the board of trade also indicated a healthy tone in the market for gravel road bonds issued before the former decision of the court holding the law invalid, and a brisk demand for bonds which various counties are preparing to issue under the law for the usual spring construction work.

Many contracts throughout the state were in progress when the former decision was handed down, and these were stopped. County treasurers refused to pay money as interest on bonds issued in the past, and boards of county commissioners refused to consider further issuance of bonds under new contracts.

The decision of the court removes all question of the validity of the act, and has the effect of placing the stamp of supreme legal approval on all the acts performed under the law. According to the act an entire township may be taxed for building a free gravel road on petition of a majority of the land owners affected by a stretch of highway to be constructed or improved when petition is made according to law.

All bonds which were held by state, private and savings banks in the state and by the trust companies were protected by a letter sent out by the auditor of state soon after the former decision. In this letter the auditor took the stand that the bonds were good and that the banking department would continue to accept them as good assets when returned as such by any bank under the jurisdiction of the auditor. John C. Billheimer, auditor, said he looked on the decision as placing the bonds now on an irrefragable basis.

May Bring Out Details.

New York, Jan. 27.—Suit has been begun by Howard H. Taylor of Brooklyn against six of the Wall street brokerage firms who were credited with being members of what is now known as the "Hocking pool agreement," for $23,500 which Mr. Taylor says he lost in the crash of the Hocking Coal and Iron company stock on the stock exchange a week ago. Through Taylor's suit it is expected that the details of the Hocking pool will be made public.

Streator, Ill., Jan. 27.—By granting to the Independent Telephone and Telegraph company a franchise giving them the right to raise their rates, the city council sanctioned the consolidation of Streator's two telephone systems.

Meat prices have fallen at Cleveland for a second time since the beginning of the shopworkers' boycott on meat a week ago last Monday.

FIRST VOTERS' CLUBS

Plans Formed for an Interesting Movement Among Young Men of Indiana.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—First Voters' clubs will be formed in Indiana as a part of the Republican campaign in 1910. Plans already are being made for the movement among the young men, and Senator Beveridge will be the central figure about which the young voters will be rallied. The scheme of organization will be patterned after the famous "Ten O'clock" clubs of some years ago in the Eleventh district, when E. H. Neal was Republican district chairman. The Ten O'clock club idea was based on the demand for getting the vote out early. The man who voted before 10 a. m. was entitled to membership. The same general idea will control the Beveridge clubs of 1910. In the Twelfth, Eleventh, Thirteenth and other districts the clubs are being formed at this time.

Here is a model state Democratic ticket which finds favor at Governor Marshall's office, but which is not regarded with much interest by the men who actually control the Democratic organization and make state tickets: For secretary of state, Lew Ellingham, Decatur; auditor of state, Albert Salm, Indianapolis; treasurer of state, Samuel Foster, Fort Wayne, or Hugh Dougherty, Indianapolis, and attorney general, M. M. Hathaway of Winamac, or R. W. Miers of Bloomington. Judge Miers might be shifted to a candidacy for a place on the higher court bench, according to the Marshall ticket makers, without injustice to him, and much to the advantage of the whole ticket. Not a man on the list offered is in touch with the Thomas Taggart crowd, which possesses the party organization in Indiana. The material suggested is admittedly good. The problem is to put such men on the state ticket, over the objections of the organization dictatorship.

Carl W. Riddick, secretary of the Republican state central committee was here Wednesday, and with Acting Chairman Fred A. Sims, spent some time adjusting the affairs of the committee preparatory to retiring, with Chairman James P. Goodrich, Feb. 3. The old committee will go out free of debt, and a clean sheet will be turned over to the incoming organization. Incidentally it may be said that when James P. Goodrich took up the work as state chairman some ten years ago, conditions were different. The presence of Mr. Riddick at state headquarters gave rise to talk of the wisdom of keeping him on the job as secretary of the committee, and there was some speculation as to whether or not Mr. Riddick would be willing to serve. Some of his close friends say he could not be induced to go through the campaign grind again, but the Riddick talk persists. It is conceded that Mr. Riddick made a capable and tireless secretary, and that his services were most important. He has the qualities most needed in the secretary of the state central committee.

As the time for making the Republican state organization draws near there is much talk of the secretaryship of the committee. Most Republicans feel satisfied that the chairmanship is to be settled in a way to please all party men. The field of aspirants and available includes acceptable men, and it does not much matter which man is selected. The secretaryship has to some extent been lost to view in the shadow of the larger question. Yet the large importance of putting the right man in the secretaryship is recognized, and thought is being given to the matter. Many men, including Mr. Riddick, George B. Lockwood of Marion; Charles G. Seifert of Washington; R. G. Tucker of Indianapolis; Lincoln Parry of Lake county, and John F. Hayes of Indianapolis, have been mentioned. It is not known that any of these men would accept the place. Mr. Parry, it is said, has signified a willingness. Mr. Tucker has been considering making the race for secretary of state. Mr. Hayes is busy as the secretary to Senator Beveridge.

James Allen of Covington was in Indianapolis Thursday, and while here talked some Republican politics. Mr. Allen is identified with one wing of the Fountain county Republican organization, and two years ago was among those who made the fight to defeat C. B. Landis for renomination for congress in the Ninth district. Mr. Allen says that his friends and the Nebeker-Martin contingent have buried the hatchet, and that they will join in making the county organization, cooperate in the work of carrying the Republican county ticket and the legislative ticket to victory, and unite in boosting hard for the Republican nominee for congress. Previous to the Covington city election last fall the movement for election union started definitely, and at this time there is a condition of friendly adjustment and understanding. To show that there is a real desire for unity, six men from each Republican camp met not long ago and agreed fully on a plan of party procedure. Mr. Allen says he expects good results from this movement for Republican party advancement.

An effort is being made to induce Governor Marshall to appoint August Schmidt of Fort Wayne as deputy examiner on the state board of accounts to take the place made vacant by the resignation of W. M. Fogarty of Indianapolis.

CHILD'S AWFUL ORDEAL

Little Girl Lured Away and Left Stripped in a Slough.

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 27.—Elizabeth Fricke, a four-year-old child of Belleville, Ill., was lured away from her mother by an unidentified man while waiting for a train in this city. Two hours later she was found stripped of all her clothing in a slough in the rear of a saloon. She was standing in water up to her waist half frozen. Aside from the exposure she was not harmed.

A suspect who gave the name of Tom Dickens was picked up later and was identified by the child. He denies his guilt.

NO CASE THERELibel Suit Against World Is Thrown Out of Court.

INDICTMENT NOT AUTHORIZED

Judge Hough, Sitting in the Federal Court in New York, Holds That the Government Had No Warrant for Its Extraordinary Proceedings Against Newspaper in Offense Charged in Behalf of Roosevelt, Taft, Cromwell and Others—If the Parties Were Labeled Their Recourse Was in State Courts Under State Laws.

New York, Jan. 27.—The indictment which charged that the New York World had libeled Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, C. P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell in connection with the Panama canal purchase has been quashed by United States District Judge Charles E. Hough.

Judge Hough, throwing the case out of court, held that the indictment was not authorized by the statutes upon which it rests. The substance of his ruling is that the United States government has no jurisdiction in libel actions which are covered by the laws of the states. If the power of the United States government could be invoked on the plea that criminal libel was committed upon federal territory within a state, Judge Hough saw no reason why alleged offenders would not be subject to double punishment by a state court and a federal court.

Judge Hough's decision is the second setback the government has received since the attempt was begun by President Roosevelt in 1908 to punish the World and the Indianapolis News for publishing articles reflecting, it was alleged, upon the motives of himself, Mr. Taft, C. P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell. Judge Albert M. Anderson, in the federal court in Indianapolis, decided on Oct. 12 last that the government could not take the proprietor and editor of the News from Indianapolis to Washington and try them for substantially the same offense as charged against the World. It then became necessary for the government to get its case before a federal court located within a state where the alleged criminal libel could be shown to have been circulated. On the ground that copies of the World containing the offensive articles had been sold at West Point and in the federal building here, the government got the proceedings into the United States district court. District Attorney Wise argued that the government could take over the sections of the state law dealing with criminal libel. Delancey Nicoll, for the Press Publishing company (the World) argued that the United States courts have no jurisdiction in such cases, since they are covered fully by the laws of this state and moved that the indictment be quashed.

NOW IN ACTION

Federal Grand Jury at Chicago Probing Alleged Beef Trust.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—The federal grand jury has swung into action and, with the testimony of the three important witnesses, all minor packing company officials, the investigation of the charge that there is an illegal combination in Chicago to control the dressed meat industry was formally begun. A report has reached the federal building that Judge Landis, whose differences with the district attorney's office here and with the department of justice at Washington may lead to sensational developments, might appoint a special prosecutor in the pending cases and thus take the matter out of the hands of any special prosecutor.

COZY HALL BEDROOM.

How a Transformation Was Brought by a Girl With Little Money.

Such a cozy little room as it was—the bachelor quarters of the woman who could pay only $3 a week room rent! There seemed to be a place for everything, and such a lot of space left over just to rest your eyes on. And yet when you look at the ceiling you saw that it was only a narrow slice of hall bedroom after all. How came the magic hallucination? Why did you not feel as though you had to walk sideways to get into the room and then keep your biggest thoughts from expanding until you got outside again? "I'll tell you the secret," laughs the resourceful woman who wrought the transformation.

"Of course I had to spend just a little on getting the furnishings I wanted, but then I have to live here year in and year out, and wall paper is cheap when you do your own hanging. You see, the cardinal principles of space, or the appearance of it, are unbroken lines and lightness of color. A large room will look smaller in figured wall paper and a small room larger in plain. The same is true of carpets and draperies. And light colors give the appearance of largeness and horizontal lines of breadth. I therefore papered my walls in plain light green, carpeted my floor evenly from wall to wall in unfigured carpet, as light a shade as was practicable, and covered my couch and pillows with unfigured fabrics of harmonizing tints. My couch pillows I even had oblong instead of square, to give the horizontal lines. Nor did I break the floor space with rugs or the walls with large pictures. Across my one window I hung a single wide curtain, bordering it deeply and letting it come just to the sill for the sake of those same horizontal lines. Then I arranged my couch crosswise instead of lengthwise, so as to leave a square instead of an oblong space, and I tucked away every single article that I neither needed or considered necessary to the beauty of the room.

PARIS EXISTS OVER SUBTERRANEAN LAKE

Sewers and Subways Bursting With Foul Flood.

Paris, Jan. 27.—That the worst of the flood has not yet been reached, there is reason to believe. The Seine is still rising and meteorological reports from the upper valleys of the Seine and its affluents give no indication of permanent improvement, nor is the central weather bureau of Paris able to encourage hope that the downfall will soon cease.

The water has spread through several more districts of the city, chiefly through the various subways. It is as though a subterranean lake existed under Paris, with only a thin crust to support the city. Water continually bubbles through in the most unexpected places. A main sewer at Clichy, the largest drain in Paris, has burst. The possibility of other sewers bursting is one of the gravest factors in the outlook. The sanitary officials are gravely concerned because the river and its overflow are already contaminated by refuse of all sorts washed down by the torrent. The street sweepings are usually loaded on barges and towed away, but the blockade of the bridges now prevents this being done, and for the last few days the sweepings have been dumped into the river. This may lead to diseases. The drinking water supply has been cut in some parts of the city, owing to its contamination. It is doubtful whether the water now supplied anywhere in the city can be safely consumed, even when it is boiled. Incidentally this has greatly increased the demand for bottled waters.

Another serious problem is the disposal of the dead. Some of the cemeteries are deeply flooded. Many bodies are awaiting burial in the city. Business is greatly hampered and in some districts it is stopped altogether. Many manufactories are closed, having either been flooded or deprived of power and light.

One of the greatest dangers to Paris now is of subsidence and the crumbling of the foundations of buildings. The evacuation of one wing of the ministry of foreign affairs was an indication of the realization of this danger. The ground gave way at the Metropolitan railway station at Percy and the water rushed in. The cellars of the Louvre are now seriously threatened. Parts of the Louvre quay between the river and the museum have collapsed.

United Miners and Federation of Labor to Establish Closer Relations.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The United Mine Workers of America have carried into effect a plan for better relations with the American Federation of Labor. A resolution has been adopted instructing the organizers of the two unions to work in harmony with each other in organizing the non-union miners in the federation's territory. The convention also adopted a resolution that no district should make any contract with the operators unless the terms of the contract are agreed to by all districts and signed by all. This resolution is intended to prevent any district settlements with the operators in the event of a strike.

THOMAS CLOTHING CO.

THE RULE OF THUMB.

Advice Seekers and Their Use of the Graft.

THE CHEERFUL IDIOT TYPE.

Picturesque Dress of Today Offers Many Pitfalls For the Unwary and to the Mentally Lazy Woman—The New Coiffure.

Dear Elsa—This is going to be a grumbling letter. You'll forgive me, dear, won't you, when you know that I have a horrid cold? And, to make matters worse, Elizabeth has just gone after a seance of clothes talk that really was calculated to drive one into a speedy decline. You know how she asks advice concerning the wherewith she shall be clothed in, and you also know how this advice when given is thrown away on such a subject.

THE NEW HAIRDRESSING.

In the case of Elizabeth, in the most-well, wasteful way. To be dressed successfully you must think things out, not one thing, but everything, unless you are one of those uninteresting rich women, the very thought of whom bores me, who can afford to throw all their mistakes, metaphorically, out of the window and buy more. You must think, certainly, but it must be thinking. The aimless making up of the mind only to unmake it again, the straw veering to any breeze that blows—that is not thinking things out, you know.

"I've thought and I've thought until my head feels quite dizzy," says the tiresome creature whose head is always stupid, whether it feels so or not, and who imagines that a change of what she thinks is her mind every hour of the day amounts to something. I'm not talking alone of my late visitor, just generalizing. And to come back to the woman who listens to the last word of advice and even then does not abide by it—why, I know lots of the species who the minute the door is closed upon the last adviser will welcome another counselor with these words: "Mrs. A. and I have just decided that my winter suit will be blue." Well, you will not feel surprised to see the lady of decision the next week decked out in a green broadcloth.

"Just the woman I wanted to see," will probably be her greeting to you the next time you meet her. "I'm in despair about my hats. None of those three new ones goes with my suit," to which you will likely reply, "When you asked me what to get we decided that the one impossible color was green, didn't we?" Of course she will look penitent and crestfallen for a minute and then chipper up, saying in her cheerful, idiot fashion, "It can't be helped now," as if that excused everything. "So I'm going to buy another. Tell me what to get."

"No," you'll protest; "no, I think I won't. You might meet some other advisers before you get to the shop." Your victim will reply in a hurt manner, "I don't think you're particularly nice." And you've not been nice; but, pray, what is the use of being nice to that type?

"Why ask advice at all?" I have said to it, and it has answered vaguely. "Oh, I don't know; I don't care for what I choose, as a rule." Then why as an invariable rule choose it? No; I'm not at all nice to that type. I am decidedly horrid with intention, but it goes on asking the same eternal questions just the same.

This is one example of dressing by rule of thumb, but there are others. Sometimes a woman will buy a thing, advised or unadvised, just because it is pretty, and the result is exactly the same—it will not go with any of her three new hats. And sometimes, which is much worse, she thinks that it does, and she wears the hats with the wrong suit, one after another, and all of them cry aloud for another rule than that of thumb.

It is not alone in color that mistakes are made—far from it. The picturesque dress of the day has brought with it a thousand pitfalls. Periods are mixed in the most disgraceful way, and there is really no excuse nowadays for women not knowing the broad lines, at least, to be followed. That is the trouble. And it is not always ignorance. Suggest to an average woman one characteristic touch belonging to a period, say the long pointed bodice of the Pompadour's reign, and she will see in her mind's eye all the charming Boucher and Watteau modes, and so on. Mention Josephine, and she will draw you a mental fashion picture of all the fascinating creole's shawls, gold embroidered india muslins, canoes. Suggest another empress of the French, Eugenie at the height of her glory, and you will have a Winterhalter portrait executed for you at once in words. They know, and they do not care. "I like it; I shall wear it." Well, we are not born women for nothing. Of course we must have our own way, but not even we can make that way a success always.

No; I am not going to let you off with this grumble. I'm about to enter a protest of the rule of thumb as applied to furs. I do wish, don't you, that women wouldn't choose furs in this way? It is not a question of quantities or qualities or of matching necessarily, but one should consider all three. I know women who buy a great deal of fur who have an infuriating habit of mixing all kinds, of finding their winter wardrobe overburdened with furs that cannot be worn with other furs. Possibly the articles may be made of the same skin and yet not match (two kinds of fox), and the difference between fox and fox is surprising just now—sable that is Russian colored if not born and sable that is neither, Persian lamb that will not go with caracul, stone marten (I'm getting out of breath with the examples), blended and stone marten au naturel, seal, electric seal, seal dyed musquash. I should like to call your attention to squirrel dyed, squirrel gray and squirrel brown, but I will stop, merely remarking that with all these pelts that are cousins perhaps not two of them can be worn at the same time without presenting an "accidental" appearance.

Yes; I know that two or three kinds of fur are smart this season combined in a single garment—that is, if I may say it malice aforethought.

Just one more word and I'm off the thumb rule subject. How perfectly hopeless are the people who can "carry colors in their eyes!" According to my mind, nobody short of a genius can do this always with all colors. Most of us may be able to "carry" two or three with safety, but even then there is an element of gambling about it. But all women are gamblers at heart. Amen.

I've "coughed" up another idea. This is not a slang remark, but an unfortunate actuality. The idea I have in mind is for you to fix your hair in the new no ear fashion, like the sketch I am inclosing in this letter, and if it is becoming be duly grateful, for it is the last style in hairdressing and one that does not add to the attractiveness of your friend.

New York. MABEL.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB.

A Way to Transform This Historic Animal Into a Beast of Burden.

As pretty a little gift as one could give is the lamb lingerie case seen in the cut. As you may easily see, a toy woolly lamb of fleecy white is first purchased, and the next step is to equip the animal with an outfit for running in lingerie ribbons. An elastic band covered with shirred ribbon tied about the lamb's body holds the implements in place, and wide satin ribbons are used for suspending the pretty trifle when it is out of commission.

Learning to Sew.

Rather a novel scheme is used by one woman who wants to teach her little daughter to sew as well as to give her some idea of the practical importance of learning to do so.

Every spring and fall she buys a complete set of doll's patterns. Then she devotes an entire day to cutting out these patterns and basting them together. This work the mother and daughter do together, and the daughter gets some idea of how garments are made. Not only this, but she is provided with fascinating sewing for several weeks and incidentally is learning a good deal about how to use her needle.

Some of the clothes are made from scraps, but there are always several new pieces which the little girl buys especially for this purpose, so that she will learn a little about estimating proper amounts needed and about cutting material to advantage. In this way the business of learning to sew becomes fun. It also gives the little girl some conception of how things were done on a larger scale, for the making of the garments is done carefully and differs little from the methods used on larger pieces of clothing.

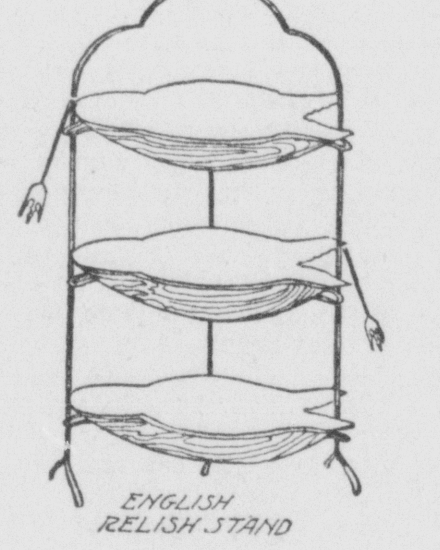

NEW THINGS IN CHINA.

A Dainty Dish on Which to Serve Sliced Lemon.

No matter how much china or glassware the average housewife possesses she is always on the alert for something new or more convenient than her present supply. Particularly does this apply to designs for special service, such as relish and entree dishes. In the accompanying sketch are shown some of the most recent productions of this character, all of them practical. The relish rack, which emanates from England, is on the order of the stands so much in vogue for serving cakes and sandwiches at 5 o'clock tea, particularly at lawn parties, to which the English are so partial. Each of the three dishes is in the form of a fish, the coloring being dull green and coral. They are supposed to hold some variety of fish relish.

Sliced lemon is the essential accompaniment of many dishes, particularly in the line of sea food, and for its special service a plate of crystal with a border of filigree silver overlay has made its appearance. A silver fork is added.

Dishes prepared in casserole are always served in the brownish fireproof receptacles in which the food has been cooked. To differentiate these aristocrats among baking dishes from the common kind they are slipped into a nickel or silver stand before being brought to the table. It is easier to handle the entree thus served, so there is a practical as well as an aesthetic reason for the adoption of the silver stand.

Cut glass syrup jugs are not altogether new, but one so fashioned as to do away with the necessity for a metal lip is out of the ordinary. Such is the style here pictured, the cutting of the pitcher being quite effective. A napkin ring of cut glass is uncommon and is calculated to interest the housewife who has a penchant for table equipment of this sparkling crystal.

MEATS AND VEGETABLES.

Stewed chicken without mashed potatoes and pork without apple sauce lose half their zest.

With roast meats sweet potatoes are appropriate, as are squash, tomatoes, asparagus and stewed onions.

Baked macaroni is a fitting accompaniment to a roast. So are brussels sprouts and scalloped or creamed cauliflower.

Squabs and all game have lettuce with French dressing served with them, and lettuce must be eaten with Virginia ham.

Fried onions fairly cry aloud for a juicy beefsteak, and roast beef without potatoes browned under the meat never tastes quite the same.

It is no longer correct to serve more than two vegetables with the meat course, though with poultry cranberries are counted as an extra.

Certain meats are as closely allied to certain vegetables as is the long meter doxology to "Old Hundred." To separate them seems almost desecration.

Potatoes are an accommodating sort of vegetable. They are good with all meats, though their digestibility when served more than once a day is questionable.

Turnips, carrots, parsnips and cabbage are generally eaten with boiled meats, while peas, beans, corn and tomatoes are good with either boiled or roasted meats.

Celery should never be omitted when serving poultry and is an invariable accompaniment of soup. It is especially good for the nerves and is fittingly served with all meats.

Rice should be served with stewed chicken. Roast duck demands both apple sauce and stewed onions. Turkey without cranberries would be as lost as venison without currant jelly.

CHRISTMAS SALAD.

Delicious Confections of Malaga Grapes and Blood Oranges.

A fruit salad for Christmas is as refreshing as a sherbet, which is so often served between the hearty courses of a dinner, says the Delineator, and once a housekeeper begins to experiment with fruit salads there is practically no end to the variations she may concoct. Oranges, grapefruit, Malaga grapes and bananas are the fruits most frequently used for this purpose, and the arrangement may be as elaborate or as plain as the salad maker chooses. When made of oranges or grapefruit the ideal way of serving is in the fruit shells, the bottoms being trimmed off to insure a firm foundation.

After cutting the fruit in halves remove the pulp, drain off any excess juice and dress the pulp with ordinary French dressing, using but half the usual quantity of vinegar. Put some tiny white lettuce leaves in these fruit shells, put in the pulp and place either a little plum or a bright red maraschino cherry in the center.

A Christmas salad made of blood oranges and Malaga grapes arranged on a bed of dark green watercress was an effective salad which was much admired at a small home dinner last Christmas.

Sections of blood oranges laid crosswise of a long, narrow leaf of romaine, quite an interval showing between the sections, is a very artistic Christmas salad, and the center section may be decorated with some small feathery pieces of celery.

Housekeeping Hints.

When broiling halibut cover the fish with minced green pepper. The seasoning will be found to be delicious.

In putting down linoleum or oilcloth have strips of molding nailed above the linoleum where it comes to the baseboard. This prevents dust from getting underneath and also preserves the edges from moisture under the floor covering.

A linoleum may be freshened perceptibly if given a coat of linseed oil and paraffin. Boil the oil and wax together and apply while still hot with a brush. Use only enough to cover the surface and when finished wipe it off dry with a cloth.

Seeking a Complaint.

A young lady who appeared to be in perfect health, but who had a very worried expression upon her blooming face, entered the consulting room of a New York physician early last summer.

"Doctor," she said, "it is absolutely essential that I go to White Sulphur Springs."

"Oh, perhaps not!" the physician remarked reassuringly. "Tell me fully your symptoms. What do you expect to cure at the springs?"

"That is just what I came to you to find out, doctor," she confessed. "You see, I have got to talk with papa. What do you go to White Sulphur to be cured of?"—Exchange.

TAPESTRY GIFTS.

Novelties That Have Recently Arrived From Gay Paris.

BOXES FOR DAINTY TRIFLES.

If Good Taste Is Exercised In Selecting Materials All That Is Required to Vie With the Imported Product Is Fine Handiwork.

Among the novelties just over from Paris is the tapestry work—bags, boxes and picture frames and all manner of useful and pretty things. Of course they are expensive. Who ever saw a Paris novelty that was not? But the woman with clever fingers and a little spare time never needs to be discouraged over these prices, for she knows that for a surprisingly small sum she can copy the things displayed with excellent results. Good taste in choosing materials and lightness of touch in sewing are all that is necessary.

In the sketch are shown some useful boxes which the dainty woman loves to have about to hold her little dress accessories. These little trifles of dress may be kept fresh and new looking for a much longer time if they are well cared for, and each has its box or bag in which to be placed when not in use.

Any shaped pasteboard box that one wishes, a bit of pretty tapestry or cretonne, a piece of silk for lining and old gold galleon for binding are the only materials needed for the most attractive tapestry work. It does not take long to cover a box, and those who have only a little time in the evening for fancy work will find it most enjoyable, results are so quickly attained.

To make any of the boxes procure a pasteboard box of the desired shape,

"On October 18, last, my little three year old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day, Oct. 23, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is often two or three months before he is fully recovered. A QUESTION OF JURISDICTION

World Libel Case Hinges On a Technicality.

THE ARGUMENTS PRO AND CON

United States District Attorney Wise, Following the Argument of the Attorney For the Defense, Will Conclude His Plea in Behalf of the Government's Right to Proceed Today—Judge Hough Will Then Rule on the Question, Though It Is Not Expected He Will Dismiss the Case.

New York, Jan. 26.—Until the court adjourned last evening, Delancey Nicoll, counsel for the New York World in the criminal libel trial in the United States circuit court before Judge Hough, argued on his motion that the indictment against the Press Publishing company be quashed or the proceedings dismissed. The substance of his argument was that the court has no jurisdiction in the case and the defendant being a corporation is incapable of criminal libel.

Earlier in the day a jury had been selected and sworn in. District Attorney Henry A. Wise had opened the case for the government, and documents and books relating to the progress of the Panama canal from the time of the formation of the old French Panama Canal company to the time of the alleged libeling of Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell and of the United States were admitted in evidence. United States District Attorney Wise immediately after the jury box had been filled, made a presentation of the government's case. The imputation of the six articles printed in the World of October, 1908, was that Colonel Roosevelt and William H. Taft had privately informed Charles P. Taft and Douglas Robinson and their friends in the financial world as to what the government intended to do about the Panama canal, with the idea that these men might anticipate the government and buy up control of the French Panama Canal company at a nominal figure and sell to the government for $40,000,000. The imputation was in effect a charge that the men accused stole from the government $36,500,000, said Mr. Wise.

On the technical point having to do with the distribution of copies of the World on United States territory, the West Point military reservation and the federal building here, by means of which the government got the case before a United States court, Mr. Wise said that the circulation of the newspapers in question tended to create a feeling of insubordination among the men being educated there for service as officers of the United States army. Mr. Wise contended that the United States court has jurisdiction to punish, and that the government had a right to bring suit under the law of the state of New York.

"Under the law of the United States," he said, "the government controls various tracts of land in the various states which are government territory. The state, under these conditions, could not proceed against the perpetration of crime on federal territory in the state so that the federal law makes it possible for the government to invoke the state law in the case of crimes committed on United States territory in such states.

Judge Hough ruled that the indictment be read and discussed in detail. He insisted also that the government put in evidence all documents and printed proofs necessary to substantiate the indictment.

Mr. Nicoll will conclude his argument today, after which Judge Hough will rule on the motion. It is not expected that he will dismiss the case. In that event, District Attorney Wise will open the case for the government, and the first witnesses to be called are Ella Rawles Reader, who was at one time a fiscal agent for Santo Domingo; Eugene M. Engelman, a publicity promoter, and Alexander S. Bacon, lawyer and promoter.

Senor Madrid, the president of the de facto government in western Nicaragua, has been drafting plantation laborers into his army.

BEVERIDGE OR TAGGART?

The Question Which Faces the Electorate in the Coming Campaign.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Jan. 26.—It becomes more and more apparent as time goes by that Indiana voters, in the campaign of 1910, are confronted by the question of a choice between Senator A. J. Beveridge and Thomas Taggart when the election of a new United States senator comes up in 1911. The legislature to be elected this year will settle this choice. Is it to be Beveridge or Taggart? There are many signs that Mr. Taggart desires to be considered as a senatorial quantity. Several inspired articles in the Indianapolis Sun have been so written as to convey a suggestion of Mr. Taggart's latest whimsical ambition to his followers, and the Taggart crowd has taken its cue. State Senator L. P. Harlan of Marion county, a Taggart man, spoke freely at Washington, D. C., a few days ago, praising Mr. Taggart and ranking him foremost among Indiana Democrats as a senatorial potentiality. Senator Harlan tried hard to take it all back when he reached home, but succeeded only in displaying the fact that he had been primed to speak for Mr. Taggart, and that he had done his duty by that astute politician.

Eleventh district Republicans are working hard in emulation of Thirteenth district workers, in an effort to arouse party men to efforts for real harmony and unity. Republican editors from Cass, Miami, Wabash, Grant, Blackford and Huntington counties held a meeting and sat at a banquet in Huntington some nights since and pledged themselves to work with might and main and with sincerity for a harmonized party. District Chairman Francis Stults, who is to be re-elected without opposition at the coming Wabash convention, Feb. 1, called the editors together and aroused them fully to a sense of the demand for Republican zeal. The newspaper men say that this first step means much to the district, and that future similar gatherings will further advance the harmony idea. Plans are being made for a love feast at Wabash.

Another important Republican harmony move is the action of Jacob Finkelstein of Terre Haute in getting out of the race for district chairman in the fifth district. This leaves the way free for Thad Peck of Greencastle. Mr. Finkelstein issued a statement in which he calls for harmony. The race between A. A. Tripp and Jacob Bauer in the Fourth is the only remaining committee contest.

The last few days have seen a veritable congressional "shower." Oscar E. Bland, Republican, of Linton, is said to be thinking of going to congress in the Second district, and Judge H. Q. Houghton of Washington is mentioned also, along with John Edwards of Mitchell and John C. Chaney of Sullivan, the former congressman. Edgar Poe Kling of Peru is announced formally in the Eleventh as an aspirant for the Republican nomination. Fred King of Wabash would accept it. Geo. W. Funk of Logansport will announce soon. Charles A. Reeves, Hartford City, may try once more. Milton Saylor of Huntington is after it. Dr. C. H. Good of Huntington would take it if it were offered to him without a contest.

Slipping over to the Eighth, it is learned that Nathan B. Hawkins, who ran for congress two years ago, will not try for the Republican nomination again, but that he may tackle the governorship in 1913. It is whispered that Mr. Hawkins' activity on behalf of his relative, Mayor Samuel Lewis Shank, in the recent Indianapolis campaign, was inspired by thoughts of a future state venture. Senator Hawkins would make his governorship race on his anti-trust work in the legislature. Bert Vestal of Anderson is supposed to be a congressional candidate. Judge J. W. Macy of Winchester may be a candidate, and Theodore P. Shockney, Union City, may be heard from.

Then there is the Ninth, with its new entry, Judge B. F. Harness of Kokomo, just formally announced. Out of the Tenth comes the story that J. K. Risk of Lafayette will try for the Democratic congressional nomination. From the Thirteenth drifts word that the Shively crowd of Democrats will try to defeat Congressman Henry Barnhart for a second nomination because he has printed many editorials in his newspaper, the Rochester Sentinel, boldly denouncing the interests Senator Shively represents. It is predicted that any effort to beat Congressman Barnhart in the Democratic congressional convention will add greatly to Republican optimism in the Thirteenth.

In the Fifth district Howard Maxwell, Republican congressional candidate of two years ago, will make his desires known after Feb. 1. It is said that in case Mr. Maxwell does not wish to make the race, George W. Farlie, who formerly served as congressman in the Fifth, may go after the Republican nomination. Major E. F. Branch of Martinsville and Senator Tom Moore of the same place are mentioned, along with Roy Shattuc of Brazil.

Job Freeman of Linton, now being boomed for treasurer of state, is a Republican, who, according to his friends, must be reckoned with seriously. Mr. Freeman's boom, just started, is being regarded with great interest by friends of Jonce Monahan of Orleans, who regarded Mr. Monahan as the only entry for the Republican nomination.

MR. BALLINGER STAYED AWAY

Secretary of Interior Not Present at Hearing.

GIFFORD PINCHOT ON DECK

Lately Deported Forester Was an Interested Auditor at the Initial Inquiry into the So-Called Ballinger-Pinchot Controversy Involving the Good Faith of the Interior Department—First Session Taken Up With a Hearing of Louis Glavis, Dismissed Special Agent of the Interior Department.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Before the joint committee of the senate and the house appointed in accordance with the terms of the resolution adopted by congress and approved by President Taft, the so-called Ballinger-Pinchot investigation is in progress. Gifford Pinchot, the former forester of the agricultural department, into whose conduct as head of the forest service the committee will inquire, was present at the opening session, but Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, the attempt to discredit whom brought about the investigation, was not there.

Louis R. Glavis testified that while he was a special agent of the land office investigating certain applications for coal land claims in Lewis county, Washington, known as the "Wilson Coal company cases," he secured a deposition from Watson Allen of Seattle, who represented the Wilson Coal company, in which Allen stated that R. A. Ballinger, then a practicing attorney, who had not yet become commissioner of the land office, had drawn up an agreement and certain deeds to be held in escrow conveying the interests in the lands of the entrymen to the Wilson corporation. Glavis claimed that he secured this deposition in conjunction with Henry M. Hoyt, then assistant district attorney from the state of Washington, who is now attorney general for Porto Rico. The inference sought to be conveyed by the witness was that Mr. Ballinger, by the professional service he had rendered in this case, had been party to a transaction which would have ultimately led to perjury and a fraud upon the public land office laws. He explained that it was necessary for an entryman in making his final proof to make affidavit that he, the affiant, was the sole party in interest in the land patent.

The witness, in replying to a question, admitted that this had no direct relation to the Cunningham coal land cases in Alaska except as to its bearing upon the general conduct of Mr. Ballinger. It was at this point that Representative Denby of Michigan showed some impatience at the course the testimony was taking and asked to know what the witness intended to prove.

In the course of his explanation Louis D. Brandies of Boston, Glavis's attorney, reached that phase of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy which related to the alleged statement by Charles Davis of Seattle, an Alaska coal claimant, in which he is alleged to have told Glavis when the latter asked him for an affidavit regarding what is known as the "Hunt group" of coal claims, that Commissioner Ballinger had told Davis to make no affidavit or statement until after the government had made up its case, when he would know just what he was expected to refute. Mr. Brandies dwelt on this matter as very important. He declared that it was a violation of the rules of the office and that it interfered with the efforts of Special Agent Glavis to get the necessary proofs on which to determine the validity of the Hunt claim.

Just before Mr. Brandies concluded his statement Representative Denby asked: "What are your charges?" The attorney for Mr. Glavis explained that Mr. Ballinger, as commissioner, had taken an active part in the claims and had acquired certain knowledge concerning them which made it improper for him later to appear as counsel for the complainants. He was careful to state that he made "no charges of corruption." He did charge, he said, that Ballinger had acted improperly in ordering certain claims to patent with expedition without giving Glavis a chance to investigate.

Forced a Receivership.

New York, Jan. 27.—Federal court receivers have taken charge of the property of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron company, and that of its subsidiaries. The receivership for Hocking Coal was granted by Federal Judge J. E. Sater at Columbus on the application of Henry D. Hitchkiss, receiver in bankruptcy for Lathrop, Haskins & Co., the stock exchange firm which went down with the collapse last week of the pool of Hocking Coal stock.

Anaconda Branching Out.

New York, Jan. 27.—The Anaconda Copper company, the principal subsidiary of the Amalgamated Copper company, has made arrangements to take over a number of the mines in the Butte district. The plan contemplates an increase in Anaconda's capitalization from $37,500,000 to $150,000,000.

THE COST OF LIVING DEFINED BY WILSON

Secretary Wilson Gives Reasons for High Prices.

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—In an interview which he gave out here and later in an address before the members of the Manufacturers' club, James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, declared that his investigations had disclosed two reasons for the high cost of living. One was a combination which kept up the high retail price of foods, and the other was the movement away from the farms, which lessened production. This, coupled with the increase of population, tended to keep up prices.

Reiterating a former statement that retail meat dealers in this city obtain a margin of profit of 20 per cent, Secretary Wilson gave it as his opinion that the retailers were forced to sell at prices fixed by the wholesalers. He declared that the large cities were suffering from too many retailers among whom there was no competition because of a combination. He declared that Philadelphia was more fortunate than other cities and her percentage of profit lower because there were comparatively fewer retail dealers here than in other cities. The retail dealer, he insisted, made the biggest profit. When he spoke of combinations he said he did not refer to the packers. He declared that the lure of the city was drawing the boy and girl away from the farm and that there was a crying need for the states to follow the nation in promoting agriculture.

The worst farming in the country was being done east of the Allegheny mountains, he said, and he urged the necessity for the education of young men in agriculture. He advised the building of agricultural colleges in Pennsylvania, and declared that the state should establish a 5,000-acre farm, upon which practical education in farming could be given during the summer months.

All unskilled laborers who are unable to make a good living in the cities were advised to "go back to land" at the national convention of the unemployed, held at Chicago.
